

LATE OR POSTPONED WORK

There are three kinds of late or postponed work: (1) work late during term time; (2) work incomplete at the end of term (i.e., by the end of the Reading Period); and (3) postponed final examinations. Instructors of courses may, during term time, give permission to make up late or missed work, provided that such work is submitted before the end of term. By vote of the Yale College Faculty, however, only the residential college dean may authorize the late submission of work still incomplete at the end of term or the postponement of a final examination.

- Postponement of Final Examinations
- Work Incomplete at the End of Term
- Work Missed During the Term