

BRITISH STUDIES

(Courses at the Paul Mellon Centre in London)

Director of undergraduate studies: Jemma Field (jemma.field@yale.edu)

The Yale in London program offers Yale undergraduates the opportunity to take spring or summer courses in London at the Paul Mellon Centre for Studies in British Art. The program gives students the opportunity to go beyond the traditional classroom into the rich and vibrant environment in British studies, generally including British history and the history of London, where students can view great works of art in museums and galleries; explore historic palaces and houses; and watch new and legendary actors treading the boards in London.

The spring program consists of four courses, while the summer program has two courses. There are no prerequisites and students from any major and from any year of study may apply. All courses carry full academic credit and must be taken for a letter grade. Courses are taught seminar-style by Yale faculty and leading academics from the UK. Courses bring together British art, architecture, history, literature, theatre, and culture to explore Britain's identity and impact, both local and global, from the Medieval period to today. Classes are held Monday through Thursday so that students can explore London and beyond in the afternoons and on weekends.

Further information on housing, fees, financial aid, and student life is available on the program website. Inquiries may also be directed to yaleinlondon@yale.edu.

The application deadline for the spring term is in October and the application deadline for the summer program is generally in February. See the Yale in London website for exact deadlines. Students are notified of acceptance within one month of the application deadline. Inquiries about the program, described under "International Experience" in The Undergraduate Curriculum, should be directed to the same address.
